Public can now watch Amador County Board of Supervisors meetings live on Facebook

Pioneer, CA: Supervisor Lynn Morgan, Chair of the Amador County Board of Supervisors, is pleased to announce that in partnership with KVGC Radio and Volcano Communications Group, the public can now view a live video stream of the board of supervisors' meetings on the KVGC Facebook page. The regular meetings are held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month, beginning at 9 a.m. The live video will soon be available on web locations other than Facebook.

"I'd like to thank Jim Guidi of KVGC and Frank Leschinky of Volcano Communications for working with us to make county government more accessible to Amador County's citizens," said Morgan, who launched the video initiative earlier this year. "We know that local residents want to keep up with what the county is doing, and they can't always get to our Jackson meetings. Our local companies are providing a great service to the public and we hope that people will take advantage of it."

"We are very proud to be a major part of this collaboration between local government and the private sector, providing live video and audio streaming of the board of supervisors' meetings at no cost to the county," said Jim Guidi of KVGC Radio.

"Volcano Communications Group was happy to help launch the live streaming of Amador County Board of Supervisors meetings," said Frank Leschinsky, Public Sector Manager for the Volcano Communications Group. "It helps provide greater transparency for board discussions and decisions affecting our community, all-weather access to board meetings, and greater access for residents who may lack transportation or who are unable to attend meetings in person. Supervisor Lynn Morgan, Amador County Administrative Officer Chuck Iley, Amador County Information Technology Director Jeff White and KVGC owner Jim Guidi were instrumental in implementing this technology. We owe them all a debt of gratitude."

The public can also access a live audio stream of the board meetings at <http://www.amadorgov.org/government/board-of-supervisors>

Archived videos of the board meetings, beginning with the February 27 meeting, can also be viewed on the KVGC Facebook page.
